Good Friday Processions

Good Friday processions in Malta have been held since as early as the 16th century. The passion of Christ is carried on a procession of statues symbolising the sacrifice of Jesus. This day is celebrated as a commemoration when Jesus Christ died on the cross.

Hundreds of actors dressed as Roman soldiers, Jewish priests, and important Biblical figures stroll along to the funeral marches played by brass bands, following the statues, some hundreds of years old. In some towns, like Rabat, Żebbuġ and Mosta, you will often encounter hooded penitents wearing white cloaks carrying crosses or dragging chains on their feet.
